World Famous Skater

CAROL JANE PACHL, who is the top amateur skater in Canada, will be featured as part of the Open House Programme. She will be skating at the new Winter Stadium on Saturday afternoon from 2 to 4 p.m. with a small group of well known Montreal skaters.

Last year she represented Canada in the Winter Olympics. At the present time she is skating for both the Montreal and Toronto Figure Skating Club and is competing for the Minto Skating Club of Ottawa.

Think Or Sink Debate At Union Draws Capacity Ballroom Crowd

By Donna Irony

Annual NFCUS Conference This Monday

The twentieth annual conference of the National Federation of Canadian University Students will begin on Monday, October 8th at 10 A.M., at Sir George Williams College. Representatives from twenty-nine universities across Canada are expected to attend this conference which is so vital to the future of NFCUS. The conference continues until Oct. 13.

For the person who is unfamiliar with the working of NFCUS, the

Open House Parking

On Friday and Saturday, October 5th and 6th, no student automobiles whatsoever will be permitted on the University grounds.

Busts, booms, dead wood, electronic computing machines, and many other equally varied and interesting topics were under discussion in the Union last night at the third annual think or sink Professors raft debate. Speaking to a capacity ballroom crowd, Doctors Chipman of Engineering, Scott of Medicine, Culliton of Arts and Science, and Knowles of Divinity each tried to prove himself worthier of survival than his colleagues, all of whom were grouped together on a raft built for one, but holding four.

ENGINEERS LOWLIEST

Dr. Chipman, speaking first, declared the Engineer to be one of the lowest forms of the human being, pointing out that from this position, he had the furthest to rise and therefore the greatest future, making the Engineering species of McGill and society in general the group most worthy of survival.

SLIGHT FOR SURVIVAL

Dr. Scott of the Medical Department pointed out that under the circumstances, primitive emotions would probably be brought forward, and were the determining factor to be one of size, he commented that his fate as a sinker seemed obvious. Criticizing the economist for consistently predicting booms when busts were in store (and vice versa) he continued in his proof of the MD's supremacy by pointing out that the engineer would, in a few years, be quite adequately replaceable by one of his electronic computing machines.

Parking Permits

Parking permits have been mailed out by the Parking Committee of the Students' Society. All decisions are final. There will be no appeals by those desiring and not receiving permits.

Macdonald To Host Open House Dance

McGill students along with their counterparts from Macdonald College will cap open house festivities with a monster ball at the spacious westend campus in Ste. Anne de Bellevue.

The ball is set for a 9 p.m. start on Saturday evening, with special buses leaving from Roddick Gates. While there will be a nominal charge for the bus trip, the ball tickets are free.

The ball-bus tickets are available in all the main buildings on the campus. "We expect to have 500 couples making the trip to Macdonald. There will be refreshments available to those who desire them, while the decoration motif will depict the styles of clothes worn by our students from the early 1900's to the present", said Kurt

There must be some masochistic element in every student that likes to see a professor in a predicament. Nothing else can explain the phenomenal turnout last night when four staff members were cast adrift in a raft by the Freshman Reception Committee, and told to justify themselves and their professions. Each acquitted himself ably and humorously, and to some freshmen no doubt it came as quite a shock to find out that perhaps, after all, professors are human. After the formal part, any frosh sufficiently sloshed on coffee and doughnuts could approach any member of the raft crew and talk to him. Again this was no doubt a shock to some student systems, but several took advantage of the opportunity, and no doubt some erudite thoughts and some old jokes passed between the high and the mighty, and the fresh and the frosh.

So long as the freshmen do not take to first name greeting and hearty backslapping of some of the more senior members of the Faculty, there seems to be every reason for and extension of these formal and informal meetings between staff and students. The heart of a University is in its teacher-student relationship. If the students are convinced that the professors are not prosy pedants aloof and indifferent to them and if the professors learn to look upon the students as individuals, and not as so many heads spread out before them there may be a chance for some students to obtain an education and not just a little learning.

The Suez Crisis

Gabriel Rezek

The author of this article is a WUS scholarship and a graduate student in economics. He comes from Lebanon and spent several months last year in Egypt.

On July 26, 1956, the Egyptian Government passed Law No. 285 by which the Universal Suez Maritime Canal Company was nationalized. The Law provided for the compensation of the shareholders in accordance with the value of the shares on the Paris Stock Market on the day preceding the coming into operation of this Law. Payments will be made as soon as the new Authority set up to operate the canal receives all the assets of the old Company both in Egypt and abroad.

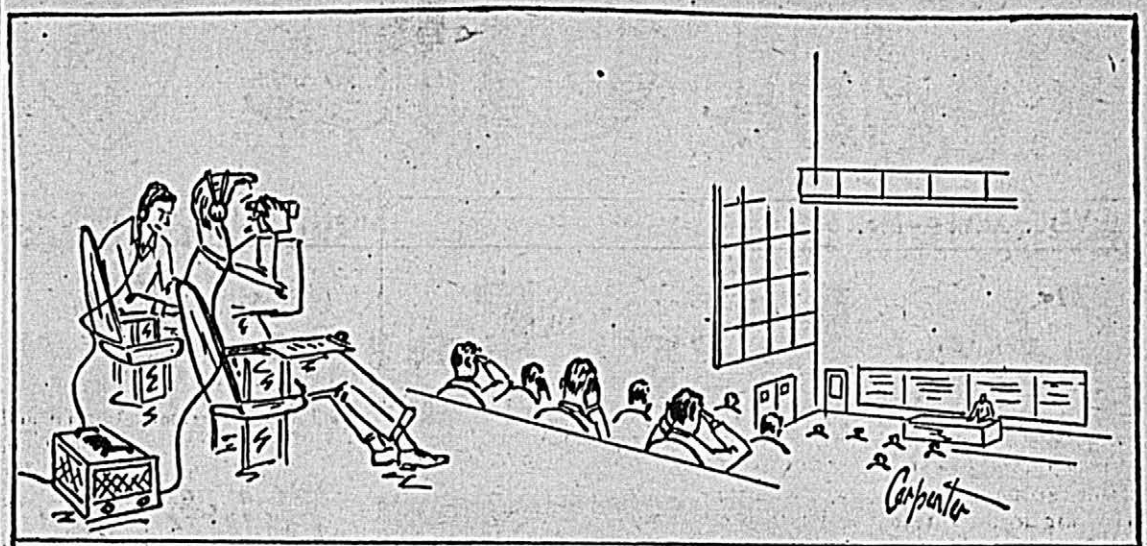

The actions by the Egyptian Government of nationalizing an Egyptian company stirred up a storm of protests from the British and French Governments who owned respectively 44% and 43% of the shares; the rest being scattered around the world.

Both governments threatened to go to war with Egypt if that country did not agree to put the canal under international control. Obviously any military action taken by Britain and France would not only constitute a breach of the UN Charter but also would threaten world peace. Mr. Hugh Gaitskill, leader of the British Labour Party, said in a speech in the House of Commons on Sept. 12, 1956: "Yes, in ignoring the Charter of the United Nations and taking the law into our own hands we are reverting to international anarchy... If there is a slowdown of traffic through the canal as a result of the shortage of pilots, I must make it plain that in our view that would not on its own justify war by us."

If we were living fifty years ago Britain and France could have easily achieved their desired ends by military action. Fortunately times have changed and small countries are able to protect their own rights against the ever-increasing greediness of colonialist nations, not so much by seeking refuge under the United Nations Charter as by their taking advantage of the wide rift that exists between East and West.

In addition to the mobilization of forces, Britain and France tried to bring economic pressure to bear on Egypt. Thus Egypt's sterling balances were blocked and this in itself constituted a breach of the UN Charter; both governments froze the moneys of the dissolved Company in their countries and encouraged foreign pilots and technicians to quit their jobs so as to cripple the operation of the canal and prove to the world that Egypt is unable to run the canal.

By God, you're Right. It is Chemistry After All.

The Company is Egyptian

The main charge brought forward by Britain, France and the United States in connection with this issue is in itself both a legal anomaly and a confusion of facts. The three powers claim that the Suez Canal Company is an international agency charged with the responsibility of maintaining and operating the canal to the benefit of the signatories of the 1888 convention. The statement that the Company is an international agency is completely unfounded. There is a lot of evidence to prove its falsity. Article 16 of the Concession of 1866 concluded between the Egyptian Government and the Company stipulated that "the Universal Company of the Maritime Suez Canal is an Egyptian Company, it remains subject to laws and customs of the country."

This fact was also accepted and supported by Britain before the mixed courts in Egypt in 1939. The agent of the British government asserted at the time that "the Suez Canal Company is a legal person in accordance with Egyptian law. Its nationality is solely Egyptian... the Company is Egyptian in accordance with the principles of private international law and the provisions of the company's organic law. It is Egyptian because it is granted a concession which has for its object Egyptian public assets and because its legal principal centre is in Egypt..." It is clear from the above that the Company is merely an agent granted a concession for 99 years to operate a public utility enterprise on behalf of the Egyptian Government. Further this "international character" of the Company claimed by the three powers disregards the fact that Egypt was to assume responsibility for maintaining and operating the canal at the expiration of the concession in 1968.

As far as the 1888 Convention is concerned, it has nothing to do with the agency that administers and operates the canal. In other words, there is no relationship between the Company and the 1888 convention. This Convention was concerned with establishing a guarantee for the freedom of passage to all ships of all nations at all times and the Egyptian Government was entrusted with the task of enforcing this guarantee. Thus Article 9 of this Convention reads: "The Egyptian Government shall, within the limits of its powers resulting from the Firmans and under conditions provided for in the present treaty, take measures for the execution of the said treaty." It cannot be conceived that a company be made responsible for the freedom of navigation in the Suez Canal and its security.

It is interesting to note that the only country to violate the 1888 Convention was Britain when in both World Wars, it blocked the waterway against belligerent nations denying the passage of Israeli ships. The facts are that all Israeli non-strategic goods are allowed to pass without interference. Only Israel-bound strategic materials and Israeli ships are barred from the use of the canal because it should be remembered that Israel is still technically at war with Egypt and article 10 of the 1888 Convention provides for such defensive measures to be taken by Egypt "for securing by their own forces (referring to the Sultan and Khedive) the defense of Egypt and the maintenance of public order."

Nationalization is Just

Therefore the nationalization of the Suez Canal Company is a decision taken in accordance with Egypt's right of sovereignty and does not affect in any respect the freedom of passage. The Egyptian Government has reaffirmed its determination to maintain free navigation in the canal. The accusation that Egypt had violated an international treaty is unfounded since as was indicated above, the concession is an internal agreement which makes the company Egyptian. On the other hand, the right of nationalization was upheld by the International Court of Justice and has been exercised by other countries notably France and England.

The real fear of Britain and France is that Egypt being in complete control of the canal can discharge her pledge of insuring free navigation without

Redmen Lose Another Man

Behrman Feared Lost For Rest Of Season

By IRWIN SANKOFF

A plague of bad luck continues to sweep over the camp of the McGill Redmen. Last week Bob Perry had to leave school and the Redmen were minus one backfielder. Tuesday Wally Bulchak was declared ineligible and the Redmen were minus two backfielders.

Now a third backfielder has been plucked from the rapidly thinning ranks of the Redmen. Latest man to be sent to the sidelines was Jack Behrman, a halfback who comes to McGills via Wake Forest, Peahead Walker's old Alma Mater.

Behrman received a shoulder injury in the Redmen intersquad will see any action in the Western game this Saturday. Big Len banged up a knee in the McMaster game and has been on the limp ever since. Otherwise the Redmen are at full strength.

The news out of the Western camp is that one of their four quarterbacks has decided that he has had enough of football for the year and turned in his uniform. The boy we are speaking of is Bill Gray, who we don't remember as showing much of anything last year. Western coach Johnny Metras has also cut a player from the team for breaking training rules. That unlucky fellow was John Sweeney.

This year has been designed as "Operation Yates" in London as the Mustangs "are making a determined effort to bring the Yates Cup and CIAU championship back to Western". This is what the press releases out of Western say.

Apparently no one has told the wearers of the Purple and White that the Redmen have exactly the same ambitions, that is to bring the Cup to old McGill.

Track Team Trial To Tell Tale

On October 11 the ribbon will be cut opening the 1956-57 track and field season with an intramural meet. All male students will be eligible for this event.

Registration for those students who intend to participate will take place at the track, on the day of the meet between 1:30 and 2 P.M. This meet will give the coach, Joe Anderson, an opportunity to view the new material, from which he will draw the men he requires to complete his team.

Most of the boys who scored major points for the team last year are back again. With the new men that are expected to join the team, McGill should field a contender for the Intercollegiate Championship to be held at McGill. Reid, Maule, Southerland, Land, Briere, and Boldon are among those that are back again this year.

The Redmen should certainly be in the running for the championship.

Swimming Season Starts With Splash

This year's intramural speed and diving contests will be held on Oct. 9, 1956 in the pool at the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium. The winners of these contests will be eligible to try for this year's intercollegiate swimming team. The meet will be held at McGill on Nov. 24, 1956. Other invitation meets will take place at Queen's University and Macdonald College. Practices started yesterday for the speed swimming and diving teams. However, many positions must still be filled. Sheila Roy, Judy Rochester, Sheila Morris, and Rose Rochman, who is manager of the team, are the only returning members.

Synchronized swimming, which includes solos, duets, strokes, and figures, will take place on October 16, 1956. This competition has previously been a battle between the faculties, so everyone is welcome to enter. The faculty accumulating the most points in the competition will be awarded victor's laurels. For further information, see the notice board at RVC or the Currie Gym.

All swimming enthusiasts interested in participating in the MWSAA water show should attend the first meeting on Thursday, October 11, 1956, at 4 p.m. in the Women's Union Lounge at RVC. Practices will begin on Thursday, Oct. 18, 1956 from 7-10 p.m. Girls do not have to be expert swimmers for the big production numbers. Just a neat sidestroke or crawl will do.

Inters Lose 7-6 On Last Quarter Eastward TD

By IRVING FISH

A blocked convert attempt meant the difference between a loss and a tie for the McGill Indians in last night's Intermediate football opener. In the third quarter, Bruce McGrath, the Indian quarterback, completed a flair pass to fleet halfback Joe Irvin on the Eastward 54. Joe ran through three prospective Eastward tacklers for a touchdown. Doug Terryberry's convert attempt was blocked and McGill led 6-0.

Terryberry kicked off to Ryan who ran it back to the Eastward 37. Displaying a crushing ground attack, Eastward brought the ball down to the McGill 3 in six plays. McGill came up with a superb goal line stand, and prevented Eastward from scoring on three successive plays.

McGill could not organize an offensive attack, and McGrath was forced to kick to the Eastward 50. Eastward controlled the play for the remainder of the second half. With seven minutes left to play, Buddy Young, the Eastward flash, crashed over tackle for a touchdown from the McGill 5. John Bewes kicked the convert and Eastward took the lead by a score of 7-6. Although McGill tried desperately to start a drive to overcome the deficit, they could not penetrate the strong Eastward defense, and the game ended with McGill still on the short end of a 7-6 count.

McGill started off like a house on fire in the first half but they could not hit paydirt. Twice they were inside the Eastward 25 yard line, but they lost the ball on downs on both occasions.

However, the Indians tired in the second half, and it was Eastward's superior condition and experience which finally won the game for them. It should be noted that McGill had only two weeks of training prior to last night's contest.

Bruce McGrath played an outstanding game at quarterback. He called his plays well, and ran for big gains on the option play.

Bob Knox was easily the best defensive man on the McGill squad. He showed lots of drive as a linebacker, and was in on many tackles. Al Stoeckel, Dave Dunkerly and Berel Hoppenheim also played well on defense.

Len Sigurdson

game ten days ago. At the time the injury was thought to be of a minor nature, but further examination has shown the injury to be of a more serious nature than was first thought.

The result is that Jack will have to have surgery preformed on the shoulder in order to correct the injury. This means he will probably be out for the remainder of the season.

Behrman, a first year dentistry student, was slated to see plenty of action in a defensive role besides taking a few turns offensively out of the halfback slot.

Coach Larry Sullivan is also uncertain whether Len Sigurdson

Novice Debate Training In Union Ballroom

In the ballroom of The Union at 1 P.M. today, the first lecture for the Novice Training Program of the McGill Debating Union will be held. All fresh interested in learning, in improving their knowledge of public speaking and debating are urged to attend. Debating Union President Wilson Southam, Women's Vice-President Ann Peacock, and Latin lecturer

Gerald Vallillee will all speak at the meeting.

Commenting on the Novice Training Program, Union President Southam said, "Debating is not as difficult nor as terrifying, once begun, as it appears to the beginner. By heavily emphasizing our 'Training Program', we sincerely hope to help the novice to progress quickly and easily to regular debating.

We hope that nearly every Freshman and Freshette will at least investigate this fascinating and worthwhile activity."

Freshman are reminded that no dues are involved in joining the Debating Union, as all students are members on payment of their Students' Societies Fee.

FEARLESS FOUR...

Roots and Branches

Professor Culliton, representing the Faculty of Arts and Science, pointed out that the root of the university system is its school of arts and science, with the professional schools being merely branches of this root. He added to this thought by saying that "It's only the saps that go to the branches," and concluded by pointing out that the lives of the various branches depend upon the life of Arts and Science.

Parson Prepared

Dr. Knowles came prepared for his survival, complete with aspirin, indigestion tablets, string with which to tie up the raft upon landing, and a scalpel with which to perform any necessary operations. He announced that taking his own life by voluntarily jumping off the raft would be a selfish act for glory on his part, and would show the parson to be invaluable as the only person available to "try out" the inventions of the others on the raft.

After the debate, students were invited to remain for refreshments and informal talks with the various professors who had attended the function.

ANNUAL NFCUS...

Monday afternoon plenary session would be the best bet for orienting oneself. On the proposed agenda for this session to begin at 1:30 P.M., are reports of regional presidents, secretary treasurers, International activities, debating committee and local NFCUS committees.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, the Conference goes into commissions. Anticipated division of these commissions are: structure, international program, cultural program, economic program and problems of membership and finance.

The conference then swings back into plenary session on Thursday and Friday. All morning sessions of the conference throughout the week will begin at 9:00 A.M., and afternoon sessions at 1:30 p.m.

On Saturday delegates go up north for a recuperation period and leave Sunday for their respective home universities.

CIC Holding Tour Of Chemistry Labs

The McGill chapter of the CIC in conjunction with the "Open House" committee is to hold a tour of the chemistry labs on Friday, October 5, for the University of Montreal students.

All McGill students interested in seeing the labs are cordially invited to join the group.

Meeting place is the Physical Science Center lobby at 3:45 P.M.

Yugoslav Dancers

The Yugoslav dancers, at the St. Denis theatre until Friday night, offer the most enjoyable and exciting programme of dance that has been seen in this city for a long time. The group is made up of more than forty skilled young men and women whose youth and vivacity permeate the large theatre, and transmit themselves to the audience.

The dances are varied; there are gay, intricate Kolo, or circle dances; there are also lovely and quite erotic love dances. The most spectacular part of the evening's entertainment is provided by the male dancers in such rousing numbers as the "Guerilla dance", in which intricate footwork is combined with dramatic tension.

The rhythms are not unlike Western beats. Almost every ethnic group will find some aspect of Yugoslav dance that is similar to its own. The wealth of material which was presented to the audience speaks very highly for Yugoslavia's cultural heritage.

We are told that dance in Yugoslavia is like baseball in America. In that case, The Yugoslav Kolo dancers are the equivalent of the Yankees or the Dodgers. Let's hope the Dodgers perform as well in their world series, as the Yugoslavs have performed here on the ball park of Montreal.

THE SUEZ...

prejudice. The canal will no longer be used by one nation or a few nations at certain times.

Motives Behind Nationalization

In nationalizing the Suez Canal the Egyptian government was motivated by the desire to improve and expand the canal while keeping its operations at maximum efficiency. The Company was charged with neglecting the development of the canal in later years and limiting its operations to routine maintenance and minor repair. Instead of reinvesting part of its profits in developing the canal, the Company utilized such profits in investments that have nothing at all to do with the canal and embarked on a policy of purchasing its shares from stockholders so that it will become by 1968 the major owner of these shares in anticipation of enterprises other than the canal. Furthermore, the Company failed to carry out many of its commitments embodied in the Concession. For instance, the Company failed to convert Lake Timsah into an island harbour capable of receiving large vessels. Port Said harbour still lacks quays for the docking of vessels, and at present loading and unloading is still carried out in the open sea by obsolete methods which contribute to contribute to high cost of commerce and transit trade.

For these reasons mainly, the government was prompted to step in and take over before it was too late. The government declared that it will utilize a large portion of the profits to the deepening and widening of the canal so as to meet the future increase in traffic. The Egyptian Government is confident that it can operate the canal, especially since 85% of the employees of the old Company were Egyptians. Furthermore, the Government was ready to recruit the best brains from abroad where necessary. The Government declared that "in achieving these objectives, her own interests coincide with the progressive development of this canal, this should assure, rather than alarm the users."

Radio Programming To Be Discussed At Open House

Students of the Faculty of Music will put on a demonstration to show the public how a radio program is produced. Don McGill, leading CBC producer, will be giving a commentary. Featured will be a short script, showing the use of sound effects and a short original vocal work will also be performed.

Sally Rayner, Ian Heron, Larry Fredericks will act in the short skit, written by Michael Kinsman. The vocal work was written by Barry McLean, a student at the Faculty of Music who will direct the four female singers. Peter McMartin is in charge of the Sound Effects.

You may see this interesting demonstration on Friday, October 5th and Saturday, October 6th at 3:00 p.m.

CANCELLATION OF LECTURES

All lectures on the McGill campus, except those in the Faculty of Engineering (including Architecture) are cancelled from 12:00 noon on Friday, October 5, until 1:00 p.m. on Saturday, October 6, 1956.

In the Faculty of Engineering, lectures and laboratory work will be given as usual on Friday afternoon, but not on Saturday.

In the Faculty of Medicine, lectures will be given as usual in the teaching hospitals on both days.
